

The problem:

The convertible roof do not impregnates no more

Convertible roofs are greatly exposed to strong weathering; that is, they are regularly afflicted by environmental influences such as rain, wind and sun. The result is that they loose their water-repellent quality and start to fade. Also, dirt can adhere very strongly to the top layers of the roof, where it is difficult to remove, since the surfaces are rough and soft. Any intensive, mechanical cleaning can therefore do more damage to the material than good.

The solution:

Convertible Roof
Waterproofer
